Credit Card Statistical Data

- There were 26.5 billion credit card transactions in 2008, totalling $2.1 trillion. That's up from 21 billion transactions totalling $1.4 trillion in 2003. (Source: Nilson Report, December 2009)
- At the end of 2008, Americans' credit card debt reached $972.73 billion, up 1.12% from 2007. That number includes both general purpose credit cards and private label credit cards that aren't owned by a bank. (Source: Nilson Report, April 2009)
- Average credit card debt per household -- regardless of whether they have a credit card or not -- was $8,329 at the end of 2008. (Source: Nilson Report, April 2009)
- The average outstanding credit card debt for households that have a credit card was $10,679 at the end of 2008. One year earlier, that average was $10,637. (Source: Nilson Report, April 2009)

#1 Reason For Divorce Is Money!

Severe debt can cause depression and even suicide. Some just can't seem to find a way out

Credit cards, suicide and depression today's economic climate is enough to depress anyone:

- Over 1.2 Million homes foreclosed in 2009 alone.
- Over the past year, the number of unemployed people increased by 1.6 million -- bringing the number of total unemployed to 8.8 million.
- 79 million people are struggling to pay medical debt.
- The average college student graduates with nearly $20,000 in debt.

Families are worried about how they are going to make it from month to month. Their monthly debt payments are mounting and they have to manage to put food on the table, pay the gas and electric bill, find money for auto repairs, school lunch for the kids and try to put a little bit of money aside to have some fun.

They might think that there's no light at the end of the tunnel but there is...It's all about having a Clear Plan of Action!

Steven Williams has dedicated the last 5 ½ years helping businesses and families find their way out of financial trouble. Steven is sharing the same advice that pulled him and his family out from the brink of bankruptcy back in 1994.
